A lecture by Professor Konrad Eisenbichler

Italians leave Pula, 1947 (Italian Archives)

Exodus from Pula, 1947

The Julian-Dalmatian question concerns the ethnic cleansing and summary executions of Italians from Istria, Fiume, and Dalmatia at the hands of Yugoslav partisan forces, the climate of fear that gripped the population, the mass exodus from these territories during and immediately after World War Two, and the eventual emigration overseas (including Canada) of many of these refugees.
